Tennessee Veterinary Medical Association Hosts 2005 Music City Veterinary Conference

(Nashville, Tennessee) -- February 9, 2005 – The Tennessee Veterinary Medical Association (TVMA) will host the 2005 Music City Veterinary Conference (MCVC) at the Franklin Marriott Cool Springs. This year's annual event is February 18-20, and will provide nearly 600 veterinarians with more than 23 available continuing education credit hours.

“Veterinarians are currently the most trusted and respected advocates for animal health and welfare in our country,” said TVMA president, Dr. Shannon McGee. “We must strive to demonstrate our knowledge and the care and compassion we all have as veterinarians,” he added. Available at the event includes extensive coursework in the following tracks: small animal, large animal, avian/exotics, practice owner/ recent graduates and veterinary technician, in addition to the 2005 TVMA Awards of Recognition and Tennessee Animal Hall of Fame Induction. The Franklin Marriott Cool Springs is located at 700 Cool Springs Blvd, off of I65 South, and the hours of the event are 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday through Sunday, February 18-20, 2005.

Founded in 1909, The Tennessee Veterinary Medical Association is committed to advancing the science and art of veterinary medicine. Consisting of nearly 900 members, the TVMA works to ensure that laws and regulations promote the health and well-being of all animals, and protect public health and human welfare.
